

Customs to launch new website

Customs will soon be launching a new website.

The site has been developed with a new look and feel that better reflects their identity and role. It will include easier navigation, improved functionality, a new search engine, and a better platform to allow us to provide added features in the future.

Linking to our website

If your organization links to, or captures content from, our website you may need to update the links that you currently have in place. For more information contact the website manager.

Contraband online

Our quarterly magazine Contraband will be available online when our new website launches. It contains a range of information relevant to importers, exporters, travelers, and the general public.

Contraband is currently available in electronic form. To receive Contraband magazine electronically please send us an email and type 'subscribe Contraband' in the subject heading.
